A NEW ANTARCTICA SEASON

A new season to explore in 2028-2029

Guided by your Captain and expert expedition team, each day unfolds according to the sea and weather conditions, revealing wildlife encounters, landings, and Zodiac moments unique to your voyage. On these expeditions, itineraries and points of interest serve as possibilities rather than rigid schedules, allowing us to follow the wonders of these destinations safely and seize every extraordinary opportunity along the way.

WILDLIFE WATCH

The expansive South Pole is rich with marine life below the water's surface and home to an abundance of resilient mammals on shore. Below are the best times of the year to witness these majestic creatures in the icy habitat they call home.

NOVEMBER

- Peak courtship and nesting activity — penguins across the Antarctic Peninsula begin mating and nest-building, seabirds form flocks and select nesting sites, and seabird courting season wraps up by month's end.
- A dynamic breeding period — fur seals mate and give birth, Weddell seals care for pups, and leopard seals welcome newborns on sea ice.
- Increased whale sightings as feeding season begins — humpback whales display breaching and songs, while minke whales return to Antarctic waters after migration.

DECEMBER

- Look for elegant blue petrels gliding beside the ship as you journey across the Drake Passage.
- Witness the arrival of gentoo, Adélie, and chinstrap penguin chicks as the breeding season unfolds.
- Enjoy heightened opportunities to observe humpback whales near the Peninsula, where their graceful breaches and feeding displays become more frequent.

JANUARY

- Encounter humpback whales from the intimate vantage of a Zodiac safari, watching for their powerful rises from the water.
- Experience peak season for viewing penguin chicks across the Peninsula, as colonies come alive with new arrivals.
- Watch for Weddell seals resting on drifting ice floes.

FEBRUARY

- Notice adult penguins begin their annual molt while the fledglings take to the water, eagerly mastering their first strokes.
- Look for leopard seals as they both hunt along the ice edge and undergo their own molting rituals.
- Observe the lively "penguin highways," where devoted parents travel to and from the sea to feed their young, especially at the start of the month.

MARCH

- Blue-eyed cormorants — also known as imperial shags — take their first flights across the Peninsula as the fledging season peaks.
- Watch for minke, fin, and other whales at strikingly close range, as these curious giants often approach Zodiacs and kayaks.
- Listen for the mating calls of leopard seals as the courtship season begins.

EXPERIENCE THE ANTARCTIC PENINSULA

100 YEARS OF ANTARCTIC AVIATION

On November 16, 1928, Sir Hubert Wilkins and Carl Ben Eielson completed the first powered flight over Antarctica. One hundred years later, Atlas marks this historic milestone with a new season celebrating the pioneering spirit of exploration and the enduring wonder of discovering the White Continent.

At the edge of the White Continent, a world of ice and extraordinary wildlife awaits.

Explore the surreal shores of the Antarctic Peninsula and surrounding islands, where immense glaciers and snow-covered peaks rise above a sea scattered with sculpted icebergs. This far-flung polar wilderness is home to remarkable wildlife, from bustling penguin colonies and soaring seabirds to seals resting on ice floes and whales moving through pristine Antarctic waters.

THE WORLD'S FIRST LUXURY EXPEDITION SAILING YACHT™

Introducing Atlas Adventurer—the first Atlas-class yacht and the world's first luxury expedition sailing yacht. Her name reflects the spirit of exploration that defines every Atlas voyage, a forward-looking vessel that expands the line's reach to new destinations while offering guests an elevated, immersive experience at sea. Atlas Adventurer embodies the promise of discovery, connection, and thoughtful innovation, carrying the Atlas brand into a new era of luxury expedition cruising.

EXPANDING THE WORLD OF ATLAS

This new class of vessel is purpose-built to expand Atlas' destination footprint, unlocking regions that demand both sophistication and operational capability.

Beginning in late 2028, Atlas Adventurer will explore new and extraordinary destinations across:

Asia, including: Japan, South Korea, China, Vietnam, Indonesia, Thailand, and the Philippines

Africa, including: Seychelles, Madagascar, Kenya, and South Africa

These regions call for a vessel that can navigate varied climates, access diverse ports, and deliver elevated comfort over longer itineraries, while remaining sensitive to the environments and cultures encountered.

This next-generation eco-friendly vessel with only 400 guests make that possible.

SUSTAINABILITY AND INNOVATION

Atlas Adventurer blends cutting-edge design with a deep respect for the natural world. Her Sustainable Dual-Source Propulsion, powered by Wärtsilä engines, works seamlessly with carbon-fiber sails.

Featuring three striking sailing masts, Atlas Adventurer integrates sail-assisted technology that, when conditions allow, reduces fuel consumption by up to 40 percent, supporting a quieter, more efficient presence at sea.

A next-generation vessel designed to balance innovation with experience, elegance with performance, and exploration with responsibility.
